COURSE DESCRIPTION

The field of psychology is the study of mental processes, brain functions and behaviour in humans and animals and the behaviour of people in societies, under different circumstances. Being connected to Medical Sciences, Social Sciences and Education, it is usually considered as the 'Hub Science'. It is a diverse field of study covering numerous topics and different trajectories. Students who major in psychology are desirous of a greater understanding of the human mind, emotions and behaviors. Some utilize the bachelor's degree as the foundation for graduate degrees in psychology or other disciplines; others use its benefits to enter the workforce in areas involving substantial amounts of human interaction.
