COURSE DESCRIPTION

Any business or organisation must have an effective financial management system in place. Without an effective financial management strategy or policy, the company or organisation will continue to lose money! Qualified financial managers are highly valued by employers. Businesses use them in a variety of specialised fields. For example, they work for banks, financial institutions, governmental organisations, hospitals, commercial enterprises, multinational corporations, and so on. Furthermore, it focuses on a thorough examination and study of financial markets, trade fundamentals and rules, market dynamics, and supply and demand, all of which are critical components of finance in any firm. As financial assets, debt and equity shares are the most important in any company. Candidates who enrol in the programme are taught through presentations and discussions, interaction with professionals in the field, participation in industrial initiatives, and practical training sessions, etc. They have the knowledge required to fully comprehend a financial market's risks, money, economics, and legal constraints.
