COURSE DISCRIPTION

Labour management is concerned with managing employees/workers at work, addressing problems, and creating an environment in which workers can fully utilise their skills. Effective labour management contributes to continuous employee development, strives to improve the Quality of Work Life (QWL), and ensures legal compliance at all levels of work and labour resource management. Labour management is the foundation of any company. The B.L.M Course covers the main aspects of the labour management programme at work. The labour manager's responsibilities include managing the worker population, addressing their grievances, ensuring a safe workplace, and utilising their skills and abilities for the benefit of the organisation. The role also includes assisting employees in striking a healthy work-life balance. The Bachelors in Labour Management, or B.L.M Course, is a course that focuses on labour management in industries and other sectors such as manufacturing and service..
